

Copyright Notice

The Integrity Commission encourages public access to information provided on its website. All material published on this website is protected so far as is allowed by the provisions of the Copyright Act 1968.

However, apart from any use permitted by the Act, the Commission grants users of this site a licence (within the meaning of the Act) to download, print and otherwise reproduce the information for non-commercial purposes only.

Specific information may only be used for commercial purposes where stated on the website and in this case, users are licensed to the extent so expressed and subject to the condition that the copyright owner's name and interest in the information be acknowledged when the information is reproduced or quoted, either in whole or in part.

For permission to reproduce or use information on this web site beyond this limited licence, permission must be sought from the Integrity Commission.

Disclaimer

This website has been developed by the Integrity Commission to provide information relating to integrity, ethics and misconduct prevention, as well as the Commission's activities and resources relevant to public officers.

No responsibility is accepted for the accuracy, completeness, or relevance to the user's purpose, of any of the above information and those using it for whatever purpose are advised to obtain, where relevant, any appropriate professional advice.

No warranty is given that the information is free of infection by computer viruses or other contamination, nor that access to the website or any part of it will not suffer from interruption from time to time, without notice.

Any links to other websites that have been included on this website are provided for your convenience only. The Integrity Commission does not accept any responsibility for the accuracy, availability, or appropriateness to the user's purposes, of any information or services on any other website.

The Commission, its Board of directors or its employees do not accept liability, however arising – including liability for negligence – for any loss resulting from the use of or reliance upon the information and/or reliance on its availability at any time.

Personal Information Protection

The Integrity Commission values the privacy of every individual's personal information.

We are committed to protecting the information we collect and use. The Integrity Commission is exempt from complying with the obligation imposed by the Personal Information Protection Act 2004.

You can access our website home page and browse our site without disclosing personal information. The Integrity Commission only records your email address and/or contact details if you use the email link to send our office an electronic message. The information an individual provides is collected for the purposes of responding to the matters raised in an individual's electronic correspondence.

We may collect non-personal information in gathering statistics on how our website is used, or to assist you in navigating through our website.

We have implemented technology and security policies, rules and measures to protect the personal information that we have under our control from unauthorised access, improper use, unsanctioned alteration, unlawful or accidental destruction and accidental loss.

Please note

This personal information protection statement does not extend beyond this website. When linking to another site from this website, we recommend that you read the relevant privacy statement for that site to familiarise yourself with the privacy policy applying to it.
